THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Events of Interest From Washington
By J. E. Jones

THE INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE

One of the most important gatherings ever held in Washington in peace times was promised, when the industrial conference, assembled at the call of President Wilson, was convened in the historic Hall of Nations of the Pan-American building. Ernest leaders in industrial and economic life and thought, including the leading trade unionsists of the United States, were brought together in "a council of national progress." Such was the definition of purpose furnished by Secretary of Interior Lane, who was chosen permanent chairman of the conference. Describing briefly the conditions in "a torn up world," Mr. Lane in his opening address said that "the troubles that exist today do not arise out of more physical conditions; they arise largely out of the inner yearnings of the man himself." And, he continued, "man wants to be recognized as a thinking man, a participant in life." The speaker contended that "you cannot standardize men, since every man is a genius by himself;" a condition, he argued, that made it impossible to make one rule of efficiency applicable to all.

At the outset of the conference, however, Secretary of Labor Wilson, in the opening address, asserted that it was the right of any man to quit his employment whenever he chose to do so, and if he was the right of any employee to close down his establishment whenever he chose to do so. He told the members of the conference that it was their duty to help in bringing about a condition so that neither the workman nor the employer would resort to these alternatives. Mr. Wilson emphasized the need of industrial harmony. But the aims of the conference were more clearly defined by one of the western labor delegates, who said, unofficially, that it was "to prevent strikes and check the Bolshevik craziness that has followed in the wake of war."

TRADITIONS UPSET

There is a theory almost old enough to be tradition, that labor and capital are enemies. The gods of Wall Street have been pictured by the same lurid artists of tongue and pen who have held up labor's representatives as universal enemies of civilization. The great American public, which has been carried away with this idea, might revise its opinions had it been privileged to behold the scenes in the great industrial conference at Washington, where there were evidences of respect, and even admiration exchanged between men like Judge Elbert H. Gary and Samuel Gompers, whose basic ideas are far apart. Or the scene might have been one wherein the rich John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and a horny-handed labor leader, visited in a manner so friendly that one could easily suspect them as having a real fondness for each other. And there was John Sparge, the Socialist, eloquent in tribute to Dr. Charles W. Elliott, while Thomas J. Chadbourn and W. D. Mahan, balanced on different ends of the industrial teeter-board, view with one another in their attempts to show how free they were from bias and partisanship towards the different groups—assuming that their efforts should be jointly directed towards obtaining betterment for the whole people.

There were three distinct groups in the conference, representing capital on the one side, labor on the other, and "the public." This latter group was supposedly the balance of power, and in its selection President Wilson evidently had in mind a choice of men and women—for there were two distinguished women in the group—who would stand between "radical capital" and "radical labor," which might avert their zeal and partisanship to an extent that might prevent capital or organized labor from the purpose of attempting to solve one of the greatest human problems of the times. President Wilson, in making his call for the conference, referred to this, when he said: "The wastages of war have seriously interfered with the natural course of our industrial and economic development; the nervous tension of our people has not yet relaxed to normal." There was, therefore, brought together what was supposedly the strongest group of people the country could produce, who were identified with the industrial situation. They were asked to devise methods which would result in the speedy recovery of the people from the conditions described by the President, and to obviate the waste caused from the continued interruption of our industrial enterprises through strikes and

G. A. NOTES

Miss Hazel Monroe entertained her parents at Holden Hall, Sunday.

Mr. Clarence Waterhouse is temporarily unable to attend school on account of eye trouble.

Robert D. Hanscom, Gould's, '19, has been elected a member of the cabinet of the Bowdoin College Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Charles B. Erskine, a teacher at Gould's from 1903 to 1905, called on Principal Hanscom, Monday. Mr. Erskine is now treasurer of a bank and an active man of affairs in Olin, Kansas. He is making an automobile tour of the country with his wife and daughter.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Sunday: Morning worship with sermon by the pastor at 10:45. Text from the Queen of Belgium. Sunday School at 12:30. Christian Endeavor service in the evening at 7 o'clock. Topic, "Christianity and the Health of China."

The Ladies' Club will meet with Mrs. J. M. Philbrook, Thursday afternoon at three o'clock.

Mid-week service Tuesday evening at 7:30.

The Sunday School of the Congregational church has observed Rally Week with pleasure and success. The Sunday exercises were of marked interest and the exercises by the children. Remarks by Mrs. Swasey and special music with a chorus choir and violin solo by Miss Blackington accompanied by Miss Blanche Herrick organist were greatly appreciated.

Tuesday afternoon the members of the Cradle Roll with their mothers and the Primary class with their teacher, Miss Vivian Wight, were entertained at Garland Chapel. Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather forty-nine were present. Mrs. Harry Lyon presided at the piano and Mrs. E. P. Lyon and Miss Wight had charge of the games. Refreshments were served and it was a pretty sight to see the circle of little ones as they enjoyed the games and refreshments.

"The Jolly Gentleman Club" of St. Paul has been engaged by the social committee of the Ladies' Club to give an entertainment in Odiorne Hall next Tuesday evening. This Club always gives a musical entertainment of animal life, if we note the advance of moral progress we shall discover that this suggestion is doubtless true.

Now to see what flows from this let us take a simple illustration. If a poor person is starving and needs help, and if I am the only person about who knows of the case, and I refuse to help, the person will suffer still and probably die. I am the only instrument God can use and I refuse to be used. God is helpless to save without my cooperation. Jesus in Nazareth could not do many mighty works there because of their unbelief.

But how does prayer affect changes or produce results? "No matter how many changeless laws there are in the world if I can find through prayer another law that is higher than they are. It may be a changeless law that people in a certain physical condition shall die. Yet if I can find in prayer some principle by which I can prevent this happening, I am setting both merely and scientifically." Hear this scripture, "In those days Hezekiah was sick unto death. And Isaiah the prophet came to him and said unto him, Thus saith Jehovah set thy house in order for thou shalt die and not live. Then he turned his face to the wall and prayed unto Jehovah saying, Remember now, O Jehovah, how I have walked before thee in truth and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight. And Hezekiah wept sore. And it came to pass before Isaiah was gone out into the middle part of the city, that the word of Jehovah came to him saying, Turn back and say to Hezekiah the prince of these people, Thus saith Jehovah the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears; behold I will heal thee; on the third day shalt thou go up unto the house of Jehovah and I will add unto thy days 15 years. A cake of figs was laid upon the boil, as Isaiah commanded; and he recovered."

"Or again, there are many evils in the world God wants to stop. He is waiting for an instrument by which He can stop them." He waited long for Wilberforce in England and for Garrison and Phillips and Lincoln in America to stop slavery. And for Neal Dow and others to outlaw the drink trade. And if you, by discovering his law in the matter, become his instrument, through you he may stop some evil.

Prayer is connecting up with a great half-discovered principle through which God wants to work. Prayer is beginning to use that principle, and so becoming God's instrument to do good.

But if you will have skill to use any principle of power you must study the method of its working. You can use electricity by discovering and obeying the laws of its working. So of the real principles of power in prayer we must discover the laws of its working and strive to obey them. "We must somehow get into the divine mood before prayer becomes really effective.

Prayer needs some standard like the spirit of Jesus to guarantee its validity.

There has always been latent in the world a principle by which you could talk over a wire miles long but it was

Now to see what flows from this let us take a simple illustration. If a poor person is starving and needs help, and if I am the only person about who knows of the case, and I refuse to help, the person will suffer still and probably die. I am the only instrument God can use and I refuse to be used. God is helpless to save without my cooperation. Jesus in Nazareth could not do many mighty works there because of their unbelief.

This itself may be rather a startling suggestion to some of us. We had not thought of God's being confined to ways and means. At first thought it seems to detract something from His omnipotence. But if we study carefully the manner in which God brings about results in His world, if we accept the evolutionary theory for the development and progress of animal life, if we note the advance of moral progress we shall discover that this suggestion is doubtless true.

Many Associate Bug Makers have been in this organization since the business was started seven years ago. There are several hundred women to day who are finding this form of employment both pleasant and profitable. Some are able to devote several hours a day to the work, others, only a few hours a week but in all cases, they find that Braiding Bugs pays well for the amount of time they give to it.

Numerous communities have from one to five Pinkham Associate Bug Makers who will recommend that work as ideal home employment for any woman who thinks she would like to try it. Of course, most of the Associate Bug Makers had braided bugs for themselves and from their family rag bags before becoming Pinkham Associates on the pay roll today, had never made a rag until the first one they braided for Pinkham Associates.

Further particulars will gladly be mailed to any woman who wants to know more about the work. All that is necessary is to send your name and address to Pinkham Associates, Inc., Washington Ave., Portland, Me.—Adv.

Mrs. Freida Soule of Rangeley were guests of Mrs. Asaph J. Richardson over Thursday and Friday. Mrs. Richardson and granddaughter, little Phyllis Richardson, returned to Bath with them for a stay of a week.

Harry Whitridge, sale manager for the T. A. Huston Co., Auburn, was in town the past week, calling on friends. Mr. Whitridge was with the B. F. Spinney Co., as foreman in the finishing room, and left town about nine years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Andrews and Mrs. Herbert P. Andrews leave town Saturday for Hanover, N. H., where they will attend the 150th anniversary of the founding of Dartmouth College. Francis Andrews is a student at the college.

Hugh Penderex has recently purchased the Charles H. Adams house below the Congregational church, where he has resided for several years.

Mrs. Victorine Blanchard and a party from Andover were in town for the day, Thursday.

Miss Dorothy Thomas of Portland, who has been in the Y. M. C. A. work in France, has been a guest of Mrs. Harriett Porter and Miss Mercy P. Milllett and Miss Helen Noyes.

Mrs. Emma Berry of West Paris has come to her daughter's, Mrs. Ernest B. Jackson's, to spend the winter.

William Eitor of Lynn visited at Hotel McKay's the past week. Mr. Eitor was a former resident of Norway, leaving town twenty-two years ago, and this is his first visit. He found many changes about town.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland S. Nevers have returned from their wedding trip and are staying with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy H. Nevers, while the new home is being completed.

Ransom Eddy is able to ride to the village, and is recovering slowly from the effects of the auto accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden Ripley of Wakefield, Mass., have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Pike. Mr. Ripley was a member of the orchestra during the recent Festival in Portland and Bangor, playing the trombone.

CASH PAID

Any woman who has spare time ought to turn it into cash. Every woman has an opportunity to do so, right in her own home by taking up a work which pays cash for such time as she can spare from her household duties.

Pinkham Associates, Inc., an organization of Hand Braided Bug Makers furnishes the necessary materials, giving instructions telling how to make Pinkham Braided Bugs from the materials furnished and pays cash for the finished bugs.

Many Associate Bug Makers have been in this organization since the business was started seven years ago. There are several hundred women to day who are finding this form of employment both pleasant and profitable. Some are able to devote several hours a day to the work, others, only a few hours a week but in all cases, they find that Braiding Bugs pays well for the amount of time they give to it.

Herbert C. Hoover is authority for the statement that one quarter of the Polish people perished during the German occupation. Since that time conditions have been terrible beyond description. Added to those who remained in Poland are the thousands and thousands of Poles taken prisoners and repatriated. German authorities subjected them to the most cruel and inhuman treatment, not sparing women and children, and then when these wretched people were returned, the Germans took from them coats, warm garments, shoes, money, food and in fact everything on which they could lay their hands. Exposed to the cold with bare feet, without clothing, crossing Poland huddled together in heathen cattle cars, imploring pity and help that could not be given, countless thousands succumbed while others still lived hopelessly on, scarcely able to keep life in their bodies.

Of present conditions, Mr. Hoover said, "The mortality in cities, particularly among children, is appalling for so little as thirteen years of age, some very little higher than their riffs. Women are also fighting and working. Numerous starving and heart-rending facts are recorded in a recent letter from Miss Paderewski. She declares that the Bolsheviks and Ukrainians are supplied by the Germans with arms, ammunition and officers."

"War is raging on four fronts," says Miss Paderewski in her letter.

The wonderful soldiers, in rags and out shoes, oftentimes even without shirts on their backs, hungry and cold, stubbornly resist the onslaught of our enemies. Thousands of university and high school students have already been killed. The spirit of our defenders remains unbroken in spite of the atrocities committed by the Ukrainians on captured Polish prisoners."

Miss Paderewski tells how Polish women and boys snatched fell into the hands of the Ukrainians. The women were impaled and after a few hours of torture in order that their agony might be prolonged, left in the fields to die.

The boy scouts were tied together with barbed wire and buried up to their necks. All were eventually rescued but almost all died from injuries. These, she says, are but isolated cases typical of the wholesale atrocities being committed.

Stories of wantonness come from all parts of Poland. In Plock, near Warsaw, the population of 50,000 had been reduced in four years to 22,000. In one of the villages in the Kowal district, the former population of 1,000 had been reduced to 120 with practical

They Win You On Quality!

Your enjoyment of Camels will be very great because their refreshing flavor and fragrance and mellowness is so enticingly different. You never tasted such a cigarette! Bite is eliminated and there is a cheerful absence of any unpleasant cigarette odor!

Camels are made of an expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos and are smooth and mild, but have that desirable full-body and certainly hand out satisfaction in generous measure. You will prefer this Camel blend to either kind of tobacco smoked straight!

Give Camels the stiffest tryout, then compare them with any cigarette in the world at any price—for quality, flavor, satisfaction. No matter how liberally you smoke Camels they will not tire your taste!

HOW GOOD IS A SONG?

The housekeeper-mother is bedeviled so long that she seemed almost disorganized. In work, with strength only half used, she wondered where to begin to do first. A neighbor dropped in at her disorderly kitchen. "I could help women to work in their homes every one to advantage," said the valiant, "but I can have only bands."

"Sailors say that a song is as ten men," cheered the calligrapher. "A song! Could a song be? Oh, no; so she plodded wearily at noon-time seemed to have made little progress. The words of the old hymn kept recurring, "A song is as ten men." Finally, in despair, and almost as a drowning man at a straw, she began to sing the old song she knew. Her heart sank in it, at first, but she kept bravely at it, and the song won her back.

Paris recently called to the American Red Cross are that in many parts of Poland the people today are struggling without assistance. With disease prevalent everywhere, this report says thousands are sick and dying from typhus, smallpox and typhoma, while whole towns are reported practically wiped out by disease. Ventilating, it says, in many isolated villages starving peasants burn the rawhays and hedges for food. They were living on imitation bread made from potato peels, dirty rye and the bark of trees, and even this miserable food supply had been exhausted when American aid arrived.

HOW GOOD IS A SONG!

The housekeeper-mother-cook had been ill so long that her household seemed almost disorganized. Facing her work, with strength only half returned, she wondered where to begin and what to do first. A neighbor dropped into her disorderly kitchen. "I could put ten women to work in this house and use every one to advantage," said the convelecent, "but I can have only my two hands."

"Sailors say that a song is as good as ten men," cheered the caller, as she departed. A song? Could she sing? Oh, no; so she plodded wearily on and at noon time seemed to have made but little progress. The words of her neighbor kept recurring, "A song is as good as ten men." Finally, in desperation and almost as drowning man grabs at a straw, she began to sing the cheeriest song she knew. Her heart was not in it; at first, but she kept bravely on, as piles of pillows and comforts and sheets were converted into smooth beds of repose and innumerable little things about the house were picked up and restored to their accustomed places. Song followed song, as one piece of work after another was dispatched, and somehow, almost imperceptibly, they began to come from the heart.

It took several days to restore the house to its usual charming cleanliness, but after the value of the song came to be appreciated, the work sped well, and this housekeeper-mother-cook now believes that a song is as good as twenty men, as a means of getting the house-work done.

"Because the gift of song was chiefly lent
To give consoling music for the joys We lack, and not for those which we possess."

Mrs. G. O. Dudderar.

FATHER NEEDS TO BE SHOWN

A young girl appreciates courtesy from the men of her own family and realizes that if they are attentive officers will be influenced by it. She feels it incumbent upon her to live up to their behavior, and is made more considerate and courteous thereby. A girl who was something of a hoyden suddenly became quiet and dignified in public, although she still enjoyed romping with her intimate friends. She refused any explanation of the change, until she confessed to her father that he was responsible, because when she met him in the street down town one day he had raised his hat as he would have done to any lady. She felt that if she was old enough for him to regard her as a lady it was time for her to behave like one. That little act of courtesy had accomplished what dozens of talks and commands could not have attained.

YOUR CHILDREN NEED LAXATIVE!

The children need your closest attention, especially after "studding" themselves with sweets, etc., at a party or the like! They are liable to get up in the morning complaining of cramps, bad tasting mouth; liable to have puffed faces from restless slumber; feel tired and cranky; promptly. Give them a dose of Dr. True's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, which millions of mothers were given by their parents, and who themselves are administering today, to their little ones.

Only the purest of herbs are used—no harmful drugs—will relieve pleasant—no constipation—worms, etc.

Symptoms of worms: Constipation, drugged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly, with occasional gripplings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twisting eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points sticking out on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

Mrs. Wm. G. Boulin of Caddo, Oklahoma wrote regarding Dr. True's Elixir: "We have used it for our children for the last twelve years, and certainly know the value of it."

were a heightened pulse or a stomach-ache. If one of the children speaks crossly, he knows what will happen: If the ease is aggravated, he has to lie down in a darkened room with all the windows open. If he is only a little cross, he has to go off by himself with a book or game. No cross child is allowed to run in the sunshine or to play with other children. A projected pleasure has to be given up, exactly as if he were ill. If his food had been richer than usual, he is reduced to the plainest diet. And all this happens as medicine, not as punishment. I am not chastising him, neither in my own eyes nor in his; I am simply doctoring him. The impersonal law of cause and effect had been put into operation.

From their babyhood they have been fed on the idea that crossness is an undesirable vice or toothache.

When one of the children wants to do something that I think will be too much for him, in addition to other duties and pleasures, I talk the question out with him. If his heart is set on it and the thing itself is unquestionable, I do not refuse permission. I warn him that he will probably have to use an extra amount of self-control afterward, and make him see that he has no right to force the rest of us to pay for his pleasure. You will find that you can't do that and continue to be an agreeable member of the household; it is as usual an admonition as "You will be ill if you eat that," or "You will take cold if you don't wear your rubber."

POP CORN AS FOOD

Besides being a source of entertainment for the children, pop corn, which is the corn kernel cooked whole, instead of being ground and then cooked, obviously has a high food value, as well as a good taste and when properly prepared for the table it may acceptably take the place of many of the breakfast foods now on the market. Pop corn may be eaten with milk and sugar like other breakfast cereals, or the parched kernels which do not "pop out" can be ground like coffee, and eaten with cream and sugar or can be boiled with water and served like oatmeal.

THE PROPER USE OF FLAG

It should not be raised before sunrise, and should be lowered at sunset. It should not be left out over night, or flown on stormy days.

In raising and lowering the Flag, it should never touch the ground; all present should stand at attention, also when the Flag is passing in a parade it should be saluted.

When "The Star Spangled Banner" is played or sung, all should rise, and stand at attention until the end. The degree will be conferred at the next meeting of Pomenah Rebekah Lodge.

Beside her husband, Mrs. Atwood leaves two daughters, Mrs. Maurice Reynolds and Mrs. Fred Godard, and one son Charles, also.

An off

You may have an off day occasionally, may come from overwork, or perhaps from a bad cold in the morning, a headache or some other ailment.

There is a remedy, safe, sure and reliable for just such emergencies. F. Atwood's Medicine. It may be safely given to children as well as adults. It is good for preventing illness, and a tea spoonful daily will often prevent serious trouble.

"I and the "L" Atwood's Medicine a safe, we have used it in our family for a great many years. Write to us for a free sample."

GREAT MASS OF PROOF

Reports of 50,000 Cases of Kidney Troubles, Some of Them Bethel Cases

Each of some 6,000 newspapers of the United States is publishing from week to week, names of people in its particular neighborhood, who have used and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills for kidney backache, weak kidneys, bladder troubles and urinary disorders. This mass of proof includes over 60,000 recommendations. Bethel is no exception. Here is one of the Bethel cases.

C. L. Davis, coal dealer, Main St., says: "My back troubled me on account of doing heavy lifting. There was a dull ache across my kidneys and my kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got at Bosselman's Drug Store, relieved the backache and regulated my kidneys. I take Doan's now to keep my kidneys in good condition and always get prompt results. I place great confidence in them."

NO SECTS IN HEAVEN

(Requested)
Talking of sects till late one eve,
Of the various doctrines the saints be here,
That night I stood, a troubled dream
By the side of a darkly flowing stream.
And a "churchman" down to the river came;
When I heard a strange voice call his name:
"Good father, stop; when you cross
this tide
You must leave your robes on the other side."
But the aged father did not mind,
And his long gown floated out behind
As down to the stream his way he took,
His pale hands clasping a gilded book.
"I'm bound for heaven and when I'm there Shall want my book of Common Prayer
er.
And, though I put on a starry crown,
I should feel quite lost without my gown."
Then he fixed his eyes on a shining track,
But his gown was heavy and held him back;
And the poor old father tried in vain
A single step in the flood to gain.
I saw him again on the other side,
Held his silk gown floated on the tide;
And he was asked in that blissful spot
Whether he belonged to the "church" or not.
Then down to the river a Quaker
strayed;
His dress of sober hue was made.
"My coat and hat must all be gray—
I cannot go any other way."
Then he buttoned his coat straight up to his chin
And stolid, solemnly waded in,
And his broad brimmed hat he pulled down tight
Over his forehead so cold and white.
Not a strong wind carried away his hat,
A moment he silently sighed over that,
And then, as he gazed to the farther
shore,
The coat slipped off and was seen no
more.
As he entered heaven his suit of gray
Went quietly sailing away, away;
And none of the angels questioned him
About the width of his beaver's brim.
Next came Doctor Wall, with his bundle of psalms,
Tied stately up in his aged arms,
And hymns as many, a very wise thing,
That the people in heaven "all 'round,"
might sing.
But I thought that he leaved an unknown sigh
When he saw that the river ran broad and high;
And he looked rather surprised as, one by one,
The psalms and hymns in the wave went down.
And after him, with his MBB,
Came Wesley, the pattern of godliness;
But he cried: "Dear me! What shall I do?"
The water has soaked them through and through."
And then on the river far and wide
Away they went on the swollen tide;
And the saint, astonished, passed through floods
Without his manuscript, up to the thighs.
Thus, gravely walking, two saints by
name
Down to the stream together came,
And as they stepped at the river's brink
I saw one sail from the other shrink.
"Splashed or plunged? May I ask you, friend?
How you attained to life's great end!"
"Thus, with a few drops on my knee."
"But I have been dipped as you see me now."
"And I really think it will hardly do,
As I've 'cross connection' to cross with
you."
You're bound, I know, to the realm
of Mine,
But you must go that way and I'll go that."

Then straightway, plunging with all his weight,
Away to the left his friend to the right.

Apart they went from this world of sin,
But at last together they entered in.

SOUTH PARIS

Marguerite Elder, and Fred Moran of Malden, Mass., were at the Elder summer home for a few days last week.
Mr. Elder and Mr. Moran have returned home, and Mrs. and Miss Elder remain out alike on the other side.

No forms or crosses or books had they,
No gowns of silk or suits of gray;
No creeds to guide them or MSS;
For all had put on Christ's righteousness.

THE DREAM OF BONAPARTE

One night, sad and languid, I went to
my bed,
And scarce had reclin'd on my pillow,
When a vision surprising came into my
head—
Methought I was crossing the bellow.
Methought, as my vessel dashed over
the deep,
I beheld that rude rock that grows
craggy and steep—
Ah! the rock where the willow is now
seen to weep
Over the grave of that once famed Napoleon.

I dreamt as my vessel she neared to the land,
I beheld, clad in green, his bold figure;
The trumpet of fame he clasp'd firm in his hand,
On his brow there sat valor and rigor.

"Ah, stranger!" cried he, "hast thou
swum to me,
From the land of thy fathers, who host they are free?"

Ah! the rock where the willow is now
seen to weep
Over the grave of that once famed
Napoleon.

"Remember that year so immortal," he
cried,
"When I crossed the rude Alps,
famed in story,
With the legions of France, (for her sons were my pride.)

And led them to honor and glory.
On the plains of Marengo I tyranny
burst'd,
And wherever my banner the eagle
soar'd,

T'wixt the standard of freedom all over the world,
The signal of fame!" cried Napoleon.

"As a soldier I've borne both the heat and the cold;
I have march'd to the trumpet and
cymbal;

But by dark deeds of treachery I have been sold,
The' meanness before we did transact,
New rulers and princes their stations
deseas;

And like serpents they spit forth
their venom and spleen;
But liberty seen o'er the world shall be seen."

As I wake from dream, cried Napoleon

"And I really think it will hardly do,
As I've 'cross connection' to cross with
you."

You're bound, I know, to the realm
of Mine,

THE DREAM OF BONAPARTE

One night, sad and languid, I went to
my bed,

And scarce had reclin'd on my pillow,

When a vision surprising came into my
head—

Methought I was crossing the bellow.

Methought, as my vessel dashed over
the deep,

I beheld that rude rock that grows

craggy and steep—

Ah! the rock where the willow is now

seen to weep
Over the grave of that once famed
Napoleon.

"Remember that year so immortal," he
cried,
"When I crossed the rude Alps,
famed in story,
With the legions of France, (for her

And led them to honor and glory.

On the plains of Marengo I tyranny

And wherever my banner the eagle

T'wixt the standard of freedom all over

The signal of fame!" cried Napoleon.

GOVERNMENT ALLOWS POINTS

Miss Harriet Smith, Y. W. C. A. Student Secretary in China, Relates Amazing Story of How 20,000 Chinese Students Organized Themselves.

By BERNICE GRISWOLD.

Miss Harriet Smith, for ten years a student secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association in Shanghai, China, relates the amazing story of how 20,000 Chinese students organized themselves to oust the militarists from Government offices in Peking and how they succeeded in becoming the leaders of China.

Fearing that China was not to be protected from the aggression of other nations by the Peace Treaty, as she had expected to be, some 20,000 students, all of them between the ages of twelve and twenty-one years and including 6,000 girls organized themselves into the Chinese Patriotic Society immediately after the publication of the first draft of the Peace Treaty to fight for Chinese rights.

Their first move was to strike from school or, rather, from lectures, as they remained in their respective schools and spent so many hours daily in private study. They then organized into bands for getting out propaganda literature and for public speaking in the country and small towns and in the tea shops in poorer districts of the cities in order that they might reach the vast numbers of people who could not read.

Immediately upon organizing, the students published their demands, four in number: (1) that the militarists, who as a party were pro-Japanese and practically controlled the Government at Peking, be put out of office; (2) that Manchuria be returned to China; (3) that the twenty-one demands made by Japan in 1915 be cancelled; (4) that there be freedom of speech and of the press. They also insisted that the Chinese constitution be finished.

An immense amount of literature was put out, much of it in the new phonetic script which is being launched in China, so that the uneducated classes might learn what was happening.

Students lectured everywhere on the demands, stirring the people to patriotism. When many of them were arrested while parading in the streets of Peking they formed an Association of Imprisoned Students within the prison and refused to be released, picking the stockade themselves when Government guards were taken away, until the Government submitted a proper apology for having imprisoned them in the beginning.

When it became evident that economic pressure was all that would be effective both the bankers' and merchants' guilds were called upon to back the students. "In less than two hours," Miss Smith said, "the shutters were up at every shop in that great city of Shanghai, where telephones are few and communication difficult. Every shop, whether large or small, was closed. The laboring people, feeling as patriotic as the bankers, merchants and students, also joined the general strike. For a week everything was closed—shops, money exchanges, tea markets, shipping, everything. The students struggled to keep public utilities running. The telephone service was stopped for a short time, but the students soon had it running again. They held meetings day and night, trying

DAILY DAIRY

CLOVER FOR EARLY PASTURE

Highly Valued by Dairymen as Substitute for Silage and for Green Feed in Spring.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Excepting rye, crimson clover is the earliest pasture available in the spring in the Middle Atlantic states from New Jersey to North Carolina. Crimson clover is grown mostly for soil improving and for hay.

Crimson clover pasture is especially valuable for hogs and sheep, which relish this clover quite as much as they do red clover and alfalfa. It is highly valued by dairymen as a substitute for silage and as a means of obtaining green feed very early in the season. Many dairymen pasture their cows on crimson clover in order to save their silage for dry spells during the summer. An average acre of crimson clover furnishes day pasture for two or three cows and reduces the amount of silage that must be fed by about one-half.

Hogs, sheep and light cattle can be run on upland pastures throughout the winter and early spring except when snow is on the ground. Heavy cattle must not be turned on the fields when the ground is soft, although crimson clover is not injured by trampling.

All of the students threw away their straw hats—purely Japanese products—at the beginning of their movement, and the women students set about making white duck hats, which were called patriotic hats and immediately became very popular. Then they began devoting themselves to the making of parasols and of talcum powder. Some of them paraded but none was arrested.

"China is the last country in the world to fear class feeling and antipathy, which seems to be gripping the rest of the world," Miss Smith says.

"In China there is a wonderful social solidarity. People get together, not so much by localities, but by trades and professions. Every one belongs to a guild, and these guilds are wonderfully organized, as the Chinese have a genius for organization. Despite poor lines of communication, lack of railroads and telephones, these guilds hold closely together. Yet their organization has nothing to do with caste."

With a leadership as highly organized as that of the students a great amount can be done. Leading men of China interpret the student movement as very significant—the forming of a new national party. It is the duty of all Christian organizations in China to give these students, who are now the leaders of the Government, every possible bit of aid and inspiration, as they need more than human help to bring China out of her difficulties successfully. The Y. W. C. A. is doing what it can to help the women students. All of these students have given up their vacations and are working hard throughout the summer."

Miss Smith has seen China change, within ten years, from one of the oldest and most rigid monarchies of the world into a republic. She saw the first republican flags go up and feels that China has accomplished a great deal, fighting all the time as she has, against the great odds of Japanese and European aggression in addition to the old monarchical party. Given thus, China will become one of the great republics of the world, she says.

Miss Smith lives in Richmond, Va., and is home on a year's furlough. She expects to return to China in the spring.

CENTURY OF THOUGHT AIDS WOMEN WORKERS

National Women's Trade Union League Will Present Its Purposes at International Congress at Washington.

The National Women's Trade Union League of America has had nearly one hundred years' preparation for the part which it will play both on the floor and as hostess to the first International Congress of Working Women which is being called by that organization in Washington on October 23.

Women in the United States were first organized to secure better working conditions in 1821. This organization continued to grow until the time of the Civil war, when all labor organizations broke down. Sometime after the war women again organized, and in 1903 the National Women's Trade Union League, as it now operates, was formed.

The present organization has a membership of 600,000 women and affiliated membership of over a million, which includes men who are backing the program of the league and are in industries where women are employed. It is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The National Women's Trade Union League tries through its organization to teach women to help themselves to get better working conditions. Its purpose is "to protect the women workers of America from inadequate wage and extreme working hours, through the organization of the workers, and through such legislation as the minimum wage and the eight-hour day; to increase co-operative action among them; to create a public opinion that really understands the labor movement; to secure definite and accurate information concerning conditions among women and child wage earners leading to legislative action; to supply at all times to all wage earners assistance in working out their industrial difficulties."

Mrs. Raymond Robins is president of the league and chairman of its committee on international relationships, which is in charge of arrangements for the International Congress of Working Women. Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the women's bureau of the United States department of labor, is secretary to this committee.

The congress is being called at the official request of the standing committee on Women's Industrial Organizations of Great Britain and at the informal request of women's labor organizations in France and Italy. Problems and conditions affecting the work of women and children will be discussed and remedies for these will be considered so that practical suggestions can be taken back by the delegates to their own countries.

WOMEN POOL PROBLEMS

Meet for First International Industrial Congress in History.

Chief of Women's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, Says Women Must Consider Own Problems.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The International Congress of Working Women, to be held in Washington on October 23d at the call of the National Women's Trade Union League of America, affords the first opportunity in the history of the world for working women to get together to discuss their common problems and different phases of employment to the end that they may inaugurate higher industrial standards the world over," says Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor.

Miss Anderson is secretary to the committee on International Relationships of the Trade Union League and in charge of arrangements for the conference.

Miss Anderson continued to say:

"The United States can no longer be isolated as a nation. We have taken our place in the family of nations and stand in danger of either going up or down with the rest of the world in regard to industrial standards. To this end we must never forget that by raising standards of employment for the 12,000,000 women in gainful occupations in the United States, by guarding against child labor and giving proper protection and care to women and babies, we are helping to raise the standards, and that just as soon as we fail to make our standards as high as they should be we will cause suffering and hardship among women and children either in our own country or in some distant, unthought-of part of the world."

"The Trade Union principle recognizes the fact that working women shall participate in the conditions governing their employment, that they shall use their own initiative to the end that they may have control over conditions under which they work. They all agree that because of this women must have their own part in the organizations that consider the conditions of women's work, whether these be local, national or international."

"Thirty-four countries have been asked to send women delegates from accredited labor organizations to attend the congress. Each country will have ten votes on the floor of the Congress, and is entitled to ten delegates."

PROVIDE CALF WITH SALT

Supply of Clean, Fresh Water, Always Available Is Another Simple Requisite.

By the time the dairy calf is old enough to eat roughage it should have either access to or small daily offerings of salt. Plenty of clean, fresh water, constantly available, is another simple and inexpensive requisite of good calf care that is too often neglected. Because a calf receives milk to drink is no reason why it does not require water. After the calf is two weeks old it needs water in small amounts at a time, though often.

NEW MILK FOR YOUNG CALVES

They Should Have It for First Two Weeks and Gradually Be Weaned to Skim Milk.

Young calves ought to have new milk for the first two weeks of their lives, then they can gradually be weaned from new milk to skim milk, and at three or four weeks of age you can take the skim milk away from them by substituting a combination of grains and hay, or any other dry forage that they will consume. Then gradually teach them to eat whole grains, like oats and corn, and straw to them extra besides their porridge.

SERMON

deep desire for kindness and honor and righteousness and happiness is met by a deep and earnest desire in them. The greatest power in the world is the power of God, as we see it in the human heart. God springs eternal in the human breast. Express it how you will. It is that tremendous power of love and good will and neighborliness that is working in and through us all, and is striving in us all to work better than hitherto we have let it."

The first great law of prayer is to believe in the power of God to work in me and my fellows for justice and happiness. Study in the world of my friends, in the Bible, and in the life of the great leaders of the race convinces me that the greatest power in the universe is this great life-giving, justice-loving power, God.

Next I want know how to get this power passed through my life. And I think we can all testify that this is not a simple thing. Its law seems to be that it enters into the life that vividly and passionately knows what it wants. Jesus asked those who prayed to him for cures, "What is it thou wouldst have me do for thee?" He wanted them to visualize the thing accomplished. When these men brought the palsied man to Jesus, and because they could not reach him, they vividly saw that man cured and in his way came carrying his couch. It was so with the Syrophenician woman. She pictured her daughter healed by the master and refused to be put off. It seems that there the beginning of power in prayer, too. "Prayer is not as much a triangle, where the prayer sends a petition up to God in the sky, God grants the request, and sends down the blessing to the party prayed for. Prayer is in most cases a straight line. God is back of me or you trying to use us as a channel for his well-revealed purpose."

The third great law of prayer seems to be that two can pray better than one. Jesus said: "If two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my father who is in heaven. For where two or three are gathered together in my name there am I in the midst of them." The fact that union in prayer guarantees the presence of Jesus is sufficient explanation for great increase in power.

Prayer grows in power by practice. Only then can it be triumphant. There are so many people who never pray earnestly till they face some great tragedy. Then like one who attempts to speak an unknown foreign language, they try to pray, and failing are rebellious against God, and embittered. Jesus warns us that unusual power in greater cause only by prayer and fasting. We can not gain the power without effort and endeavor. With this power you may become the instrument of God in bringing happiness, health and success and victory to your own life and the lives of others.

Let us glance again over the path we have cover. Prayer depends upon a knowledge of the ways of God in His world, and faith in the good spirit at the heart of the human race who is seeking for instruments through whom he can bring greater joy and usefulness to men. We have what seems to be three laws by which this power comes to us: (1) By harmonizing our desires with the divine nature, i. e., seeing as far as we can that what we are praying for is kind and wise and benevolent; (2) The vivid believing conception of the prayer being answered. (3) The uniting together of persons who agree upon the objects of their prayer and persist till some assured definite result is gained.

But there is a fourth law. It is what the Bible calls waiting upon God. After you have made known your request in expectation and in praise; wait and listen to what the Lord would say unto you. In a hundred instances in the Bible we have the expression, "Wait upon the Lord." The prophet says, "I will stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower, and will look forth to see what He will speak with me, and what I shall answer concerning my complaint."

The quiet resting of the soul in God after the prayer enables one to hear the voice of God speaking in the heart. From Him you may learn defects in your way of presenting your petition, and ways of guiding your request. Greater possibilities than you had imagined possible are presented to you as you wait to witness at a close of your prayer. If you have done all your part, though the prayer to not granted in the form asked, God will satisfy you. He may give you just what you ask. He may not give you what you ask. He may give you something better than you asked.

But this is the external testimony of those who have really tried it. Those that you get as answer that really satisfy them.

PRAYER

"O Lord help us to put ourselves in to our prayers, to feel ourselves in living touch with thee to thank thee for the favors and its constant realization, and more to wait upon thee to hear

DR. ANDREW JOHNSON

One of the men chosen to be on the first program on the first Chautauqua to go into Australia was Dr. Andrew Johnson. He has made a decided success there and has just returned to America. He will give his lecture, "Ell and Dennis," at Chautauqua on the first evening.

Dr. Johnson believes in the saving grace of humor with which he is richly endowed. His audiences are always in good humor. His own laugh is contagious and his stories break like sunshine on his hearers. Every story points to a moral. Johnson takes himself and his work seriously, and while his listeners are laugh provoking in the extreme, they are sound and logical as well. He simply has the faculty of hammering home the truth with a smile.

A lecture by Andrew Johnson is a sure cure for the blues. It beats a vacation at the seashore for the fellow who thinks he doesn't like lectures. It exterminates pessimism. It brushes the cobwebs off the mental machinery and sets the wheels of thought revolving.

It fires up and blows the whistle for spiritual factories that have been shut down.

It prods communities into concerted action and sends individuals barking on the trail of opportunity.

It asks shams, swats hypocrisy, and slams falsehood. It exalts virtue, glorifies labor and gives inspiration. It is as invigorating as a mental bath.

If you feel blue, hear Andrew Johnson on the opening evening of Chautauqua. If you haven't that feeling, hear him anyhow. It will be a cheap insurance policy against that "blue feeling."

THE POTTERS—MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC ENTERTAINERS

"The Potters gave us one of the most enjoyable programs ever given here, we saw them again," is what the other towns at the Chautauqua circuit are saying. They will appear on the Chautauqua program to be given here Nov. 7-10. "The Potters in Song and Story" means a program full of melody and dramatic action. Mr. and Mrs. Potter are a very versatile couple. Mr. Potter is a Baritone, an Impresario, and Pianist. Mrs. Potter is a Mezzo-Soprano, a Pianist, a Harp-Guitarist, and Harpist.

They will present a varied program of readings, dramatic sketches, and musical numbers. Some of the press comments on this successful company from other towns show that they have been universal favorites, with the audience fortunate enough to hear them.

"Mr. and Mrs. Potter are excellent entertainers and their company is at always looked for with pleasant anticipation."

"The Potters gave a delightful program."

"No entertainers have ever appeared here who gave greater satisfaction."

"The musical talents they add the art of acting and sketching, the three combined furnishing two additional hours of rare amusement for a large audience."

Such unusual points to a highly entertaining program by "The Potters" to this town.
